Maria Stanfield is CEO, MSC Career Consulting Services a full suite of career counseling services, including interview skills, networking strategies and resume writing.

Maria works with her clients to unlock the secrets to jumpstarting, growing and excelling in a successful professional career. Her insights, strategies and tips are drawn from her personal career journey as she has moved from the front desk to a corner office. She coaches how to move up the corporate ladder.

Currently the Director of Administration at the Virginia office of Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman LLP, she leads and manages more than 60 lawyers and over 70 professional staff members. In the 30 years she's been with the firm, she has held numerous managerial positions, experience that contributes to her current role overseeing all of the local office financial management, operations, project management and leadership.

She has always had a passion for supporting and nurturing disadvantaged women and has spent several years personally committing to work with and support this cause. As founder of My Sister's Closet of Maryland she works to support women in their quest to achieve a strong financial, professional and spiritual foundation. By providing spiritual guidance, professional attire, career development and training, Maria is a firm believer that these tools will encourage long-term personal prosperity and career success.

Maria cherishes her husband and three daughters and enjoys spending time with her family and friends. <http://www.msc-metro.org/contact>
